

Preaching for Biblical Literacy

---

Eran Holt & Jared Berry

Summary

This video discusses strategies for developing biblical literacy among youth through practical preaching and teaching methods. The speakers, Eran and Jared, emphasize the importance of regularly preaching through entire books of the Bible, connecting passages to the overarching biblical narrative, and preaching Jesus as the central focus. They share personal experiences and insights on how these approaches can help students understand and apply Scripture better. The discussion also highlights the availability of free sermon series resources on the Lead the Generation website that exemplify these principles.

Main Points

Preaching through Books of the Bible

Jared recommends preaching through entire books of the Bible over a series of weeks rather than topical or isolated passages. This approach helps students understand each book's context, flow, and overall message. It also reduces the preacher's preparation time and creates an appetite for God's Word among students. Aaron mentions that the Lead the Generation website offers free sermon series resources that preach through various biblical books.

Connecting to the Greater Narrative

Jared emphasizes the importance of connecting each passage to the overarching biblical narrative, which he describes as a story of identity and mission. He suggests framing the Bible as one cohesive story that ultimately points to Jesus, helping students understand how individual passages fit into the larger context. This approach aids in developing a deeper understanding of Scripture's unity and purpose.

Preaching Jesus

Both speakers stressed the necessity of preaching Jesus as the central focus rather than merely offering advice or behavior modification. Jared states that the ultimate goal should be to glorify Jesus and make Him beautiful in students' eyes. Eran shares a personal experience of realizing the need to preach Christ more intentionally to help his son become a devoted follower. They assert that preaching Jesus is the key to true life transformation and biblical literacy.

Action Items

- Preach through books of the Bible regularly.
- Connect the passage to the greater narrative of Scripture.
- Preach Jesus as the central focus, glorifying Him and making Him beautiful in students' eyes.
- Utilize the free sermon series resources on the Lead the Generation website that exemplify preaching through biblical books.